

Why does my client machine need too much time to connect when the authentication is required?
